Birchley Park's architecture and interior design are inspired by the timeless aesthetics of Scandinavia: beauty, simplicity, and functionality. Natural lighting, uncluttered spaces, wood accents, plants, and muted colours are hallmarks of Scandinavian design, a creative movement that defined mid-century modern design and endures into the 21st century. Exhibiting masterful craftsmanship, every space evokes a feeling of tranquility, relaxation, and comfort – the Danish concept of “Hygge.” In such an environment, you feel free and content. Birchley Park welcomes you with calming tones, Biophilic design, natural materials, and a sense of openness.

How to Make a Hygge Home.

A concept with its roots in Denmark and embraced all over Scandinavia, “Hygge” means a feeling of sociability, contentment, cozy comfort, and wellness. Just imagine being in a cozy wood cabin on a fall day with a roaring fire, candles, and comfortable couches.

Make your home feel “Hygge” with only a few changes: A neutral colour palette, with white, grey, beige, and pastel shades for walls and furniture. Add unfinished wood tables, a few throw blankets, and lots of big pillows. Complete the look with candles, plants, and simple stone, wood, and pottery accessories.

Sophisticated by Nature

A relaxing retreat and the hub of your home life, the living area is as space-efficient as it is serene. With smart thermostats working for you for seamless comfort, you can always control your home's temperature from anywhere. Your modern kitchen/dining area is designed to enhance your culinary experience, whether you're entertaining guests or putting together a quick meal.
